THE EIGHTH INTERNATIONAL
RISK MANAGEMENT CONFERENCE
Almaty, Kazakhstan 19-20 April 2012

With the world economy in a state of uncertainty, it is important that the right steps are taken to minimize further risks and that decisions, from corporate entities all the way down to personal levels by the man in the street, are based on sound knowledge and advice.

The global economy faces many challenges and any growth will undoubtedly be fueled by the fast developing Far Eastern market particularly as industrialized nations are facing problems associated with stagnant economies. However, the picture rapidly changes on a day-by-day basis and there is a need to be "on top" of the changes so that your business is not left standing by the wayside.

Some economists are positive in their outlook, whilst others are talking down any real recovery: whoever is a right remains to be seen, but only an efficient risk management system can see you though to the good days ahead.

Almaty, in the heart of Eurasia, will host the Eighth International Risk Management Conference. Top experts, politicians and businessmen from around 40 countries will gather together to share with you new approaches, suggestions and recommendations over all spheres of risk management.

The conference will address topical issues of the day that you may find useful in your business development applications.

Key questions of the conference:

- Quality of risk management - facility to attract investors
- Risks to the markets in 2012
- Risk management as a tool to protect clients' interests
- The risks of mining, fuel and energy industry
- Risk management as a tool for management profitability
- Risk management within the space industry
- Risk management for catastrophic events
- The future of the global economy and Kazakhstan's part in its growth
- Management budget, investment, financial and operational risks
